DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

1. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

2. Claims 23-27 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Wallman.

As per claim 23, Wallman discloses a method and system for enabling investors to create and manage a portfolio of securities on a cost effective basis. Note the abstract. The system comprises:

a computer particularly arranged and configured within a network for continuously gathering news, data and other information potentially affecting trading of securities in substantially real time (column 16, lines 37-65);

a computer particularly arranged and configured within said network for continuously monitoring and analyzing comprehensible indicia, at least one of computer having a strategy execution program running thereon, the program comparing indicia to end user defined parameters in order to generate one or more commands upon the occurrence of the indicia falling within said parameters (column 17, lines 8-33);

a computer particularly configured within said network to enable live real-time interaction between an end user computer terminal and one or more broker terminals (column 27, lines 5-30; column 8, lines 10-26 and column 26, lines 27-64) and a computer directly interlinking another computer with a securities exchanges and configured for enabling direct end-user execution of securities trades (column 26, line 65 to column 27, line 27).

Wallman teaches that financial service providers and trading companies usually receive real time raw data feeds from floors of exchanges, and a computer configured to continuously process and filter said raw data from the feeds into comprehensible indicia for human monitoring and evaluation (note column 10, lines 42-46).

The difference between the claimed invention and the teachings of Wallman is that Wallman does not explicitly teach a plurality of first computers to a plurality of fifth computers performing the recited functions. It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to have a plurality of computers performing the claimed functions as taught by Wallman in order to assign specific tasks to different computers thereby allowing a faster response time and implementation of the recited functions thereby processing client's requests faster and more efficiently.

As per claims 24-25, note column 23, line 10 to column 26, line 45).

As per claims 26-27, note column 27, lines 38-62 and column 29, lines 37-49.

Conclusion

3. Applicant's amendment necessitated the new ground(s) of rejection presented in this Office action. Accordingly, THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. See MPEP § 706.07(a). Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the date of this final action.
